Judicial Ethics Opinion

September 21, 1990
JE - 79

Question: May an Assistant County Attorney hold the office of Domestic Relations Commissioner?

Answer: No. This violates the appearance of impropriety. See Canon 2.

The question presented is whether an Assistant County Attorney may hold the office of Domestic Relations Commissioner. The answer is no, the reason being that the Judicial Ethics Committee believes the two offices are incompatible. See 67 C.J.S. Officers § 27 (1978); 3 E. McQuillan, The Law of Municipal Corporations § 12.67 (1982). While there is no statutory or constitutional incompatibility of the offices of County Attorney and Domestic Relations Commissioner in Kentucky, the Committee believes that the simultaneous holding of the office of prosecutor and judge violates the appearance of impropriety. See Canon 2.
